GENERAL NATHAN F. TWINING, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN, Chairman Joint Chiefs of Staff, discuss the transition to come in mid-August when the air leader succeeds to the post of JCS chairman.

Budget Aides Call For Pay Details

THE Budget Bureau has called upon the Defense Department to send a team of experts to answer questions concerning the military pay adjustment bill proposed by Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

This measure carries a price tag of about $150 million for the last six months of fiscal year '58.

Defense officials were encouraged by the Budget Bureau's call for technical advice. The action showed that Mr. Wilson's proposal will not be permitted to lie dormant.

The Pentagon must succeed in obtaining an early green light from the Budget Bureau, which speaks for the Administration, if a pay bill is to reach Congress in time for hearings at this session. The House and Senate begin the annual Easter Recess on 18 April and return the 29th.

Secretary Wilson has assured the Cordiner Committee, through its chairman, President Ralph J. Cordiner of the General Electric Company, that he intends to do everything he can to obtain a new military pay structure before he leaves the Pentagon.

Mr. Wilson has said repeatedly that he endorses the principles advanced by the Cordiner Committee in its pay report, although he feels some changes are necessary. Obviously, the major impact of Mr. Wilson's changes is to reduce the initial costs. The Cordiner Plan would require an outlay of $249 million for the period from January to June 1958.

Better-Quality Merchandise Is Slated For Exchanges; New Prices On 24 Items

PRICE limitations on 24 items now sold in Service exchange stores will be boosted as the result of agreements reached between the Armed Forces and national retail associations.

The new limitations will enable Service families to buy better-quality silverware, mixers, fans, vacuum cleaners, coffee makers, carpet sweepers, ironing boards, kitchen stools, clothes dryers, lawn mowers, power tools, transistor radios, portable record players, cameras, projectors, photographic accessories, automobile chains, repair parts, seat covers and other items. Better-grade men's shirts also will be stocked.

All of these items currently are being sold in exchanges, but the new agreements will permit the exchanges to carry more desirable merchandise and greater assortments.

Still in dispute as THE JOURNAL went to press were Pentagon proposals to add baby furniture, children's clothing in sizes 7 through 12, tires and batteries and men's sport coats to the list of items now authorized for sale in Service Exchanges. The addition of these items has met strong opposition from various retail groups.

The retailers have agreed to the addition of only three new items: maternity dresses, electric blankets and portable typewriters. The top price for the typewriters is limited to $70.

THE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT

WITHDREW three proposals as the result of objections raised by the retail groups. The now dead plans would have boosted the $5 limit on civilian sweaters to $7.50, the 25c limit on drinking glasses to 50c, and the $35 limit on rings to $50.

Journal Highlights

A special report to JOURNAL readers (Page 11) by Col. Byron L. Steger, MC, USA, Office of the Army Surgeon General, tells of progress in medical education for handling mass atomic casualties.

On Page 4, the names of 146 new RA appointees are listed, as well as new lists of Army temporary colonels and lieutenant colonels.

Navy plans for a mammoth review at Hampton Roads, Va., in June are related on Page 6. There's word about a new Marine Corps summer uniform on the back page of this issue.

Air Force plans for selection of permanent captains are related on Page 8; on that page, there are also stories on AF flying safety.

Army's "Prestige" Drive Hits Certificates; Officer-NCO Signatures Held Their Word

THE Army's drive to enhance the prestige of its officers and noncommissioned officer corps is being strengthened by a vigorous attack against non-essential and irritating certification requirements.

The object, says Lt. Gen. Donald P. Booth, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, "is to reassert the traditional concept that a military man's signature is his word."

That philosophy has prompted the Army to scrutinize some 526 instances where administrative certifications have been required.

As a consequence of this study, soon to be capped with publication of a new regulation, 369 "I certify that" declarations have been or will be eliminated.

An example: In the past, Army Veterinarians have been obliged to sign a certificate regarding suitability of fats turned in by commissary stores.

The Army is certain that a simple signature on a document is adequate in the case of the commissary fats.

An Army Certification Review Board, established late last year at the direction of Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, USA-Ret., then Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, and now Executive Vice President of the Association of the U. S. Army, has succeeded in completely eliminating 121 certificate statements. These have been declared "non-essential" or "inappropriate."

Thus, it will no longer be necessary, when implementing regulations are issued and current forms are exhausted, for an officer reviewing his 201 file to certify that he will not remove any papers. An officer attending school henceforth will not be compelled to certify that text books he purchased were necessary for the course.

THE VIGOR of the Army's attack on the certification problem is pointed up in the fact that the seemingly sacred certification on the Morning Report also is to be eliminated.

Army officials explain that in a matter such as the Morning Report, an officer has been expected to certify to a document that it is impossible for him to check in every detail.

The feeling is now that certifications should be restricted to instances where an officer can, in fact, certify to the accuracy of a report or the execution of a

"Careerist" Housing

The military family housing program is being shaped to meet the needs of "career-motivated" officers and noncommissioned officers.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Floyd S. Bryant made this statement 10 April in testimony before the Rivers House Armed Services Subcommittee.

He told the committee, headed by Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D-SC), that the Services require 289,000 units of family housing—220,000 in the U. S. and 67,000 overseas—but that these figures do not take into account the needs of enlisted personnel of the lower pay grades.

Mr. Bryant said the Pentagon "does

TOP LEVEL ASSIST—Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker and Lt. Gen. Donald P. Booth, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, pin the stars of a major general on the shoulders of Ralph W. Zwicker, USA, following his confirmation by the Senate. He will command the 24th Infantry Division in the Far East.

Army Attacks Wide Use Of "I Certify That"

From first page—responsibility because of his own checking.

Out of the more than 500 certification requirements that were studied by the Review Board, about 11 will be retained.

One certificate that will be kept is DA Form 444, pertaining to Inventory Adjustments. The certification is believed to be essential here for "conduct of the business of the Government."

Another exception is being made with regard to the certification that a Unit Commander must make that an Enlisted Man's clothing has been delivered to a medical facility when the soldier is transferred as a patient.

THE ARMY TAKES THE POSITION that the commander has a solemn responsibility in such a situation to look after the welfare of the soldier and that a certification helps stress the importance of safeguarding the private possessions of the enlisted man when he is incapacitated.

It is no secret that officers in all the Services and senior noncommissioned officers as well have been irked by the trend of recent years which downgraded the validity of an individual's signature by requiring certifications at every turn.

Some of the certification requirements were imposed by the Department of the Army. Others resulted from other agencies, including the Department of Defense. Inter-Service requirements help compound the problem.

But on top of this, the Army's study showed that many subordinate field commands were requiring certification for matters which the Department of the Army demanded either no document at all or just a signature.

With the firm backing of General Maxwell D. Taylor, USA, Chief of Staff, who has encouraged General Weible and his successor, General Booth, to do everything possible to slash administrative certifications, the Pentagon intends to monitor closely the fight against the "I certify that" outbreak of recent years.

Already, some regulations have been changed to eliminate the need for certification.

Next, the Army will publish AR 1-85. It will state:

"It is the policy of the Department of the Army to minimize the use of certifications. The indiscriminate use of certificates, particularly as a substitute for proper supervision, is proscribed.

"It is a fundamental principle of military law, as well as a long-established custom of the Army, that an officer's signature is in itself a certification by that officer of the truth of all that is contained in the document to which the signature is affixed. In certain matters deemed of great importance, however, or when required by statute, a written certification, to the effect that a certain fact is or is not so, is included as a part of that document. The reason for such certification is to call to the attention of all concerned that this is a matter of unusual importance and, in certain instances, to substitute for and have the effect of an affidavit. The indiscriminate use of certifications serves only to lessen the significance of certificates when required. Hence, certifications should be required of officers only when necessitated by statute, authority superior to the Department of the Army, or when it is desired to bring the unusual importance of a matter forcefully to the attention of all concerned.

"The above statement is not to be understood as reflecting upon the importance and significance of an officer's signature without certification. Officers will be held accountable for false or negligent statements even though not contained in certified documents and must insure that all documents they sign, whether containing a certificate or not, are accurate in all respects."

The control that will clinch the success of the program is a forthcoming Change to AR 31-1 on Military Publications. It states:

"Certifications will not be included in any Department of the Army publications, including forms, prescribed by any agency of the Department of the Army, unless they are required by law or agencies external to the Department of Defense or are essential to the conduct of the business of the Government. Certificates will not be established at echelons below the Department of the Army unless approved by the major commander concerned as essential to the conduct of Government business."

A Change to AR 310-3, also pertaining to Military Publications, states:

"Each request to the Army Publication Board or to the Adjutant General for the printing of, or approval to print a publication which contains a requirement for certification will include the following statement:

"The certificates contained in or required by this publication are required by law or agencies external to the Department of Defense or are essential to the conduct of the business of the Government."

"Such request will be signed by the agency head, his deputy, or a division chief."

In short: If a certificate is needed in a particular instance, the request for its inclusion in an Army publication must be stated in writing. The responsible officer must sign this request. He need not, however, certify to the need. His signature alone will be enough.

SON SWEARS IN FATHER. Lt. Col. James H. Fox, USAF, Chief of the Terrestrial Sciences Branch, Geophysics Division, ARDC, Baltimore, Md., administers the oath of allegiance to his father, Army Master Sergeant James M. Fox, who is assigned to the Newark Recruiting Station, Newark, N. J. Colonel Fox was a Major at the time, and after the ceremonies, Sergeant Fox pinned the silver leaves of Lieutenant Colonel on the shoulders of his newly promoted son. Sergeant Fox's latest re-enlistment caps a period of long service in the military, including Mexican border service, and overseas tours during World War I and the Korean War. ## Committee Approves $818,000 Land Deal For Housing; Patrick AFB Gets Big Slice

A Pentagon plan to purchase 390 acres of land at three Air Force and Navy bases got the go-ahead this week from the House Armed Services Committee.

The land, which will cost $818,300, is to be used as sites for 1,896 new Capehart family housing units.

At Patrick AFB, Fla., 313 acres will be purchased at a cost of $614,500 as a site for 1,125 units of Capehart housing.

At McGhee-Tyson Airport, Tenn., 50 acres will be purchased for $43,800, for the construction of 181 units of family housing.

At the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., 27 acres will be purchased for $160,000 as the site, along with 90 acres already owned by the Navy, for the construction of 590 Capehart units. The housing will include 142 multiple dwellings.

The Committee also gave the green light to a plan to transfer 64,000 acres of land from the Army to the Air Force at Camp Cooke Military Reservation, Calif. The land will be used as a training base for Air Force missile units.

At Carswell AFB, Tex., the Committee approved the acquisition of 35 acres of land costing $164,550, to be used for runway extensions.

At Chanute AFB, Ill., acquisition of 800 Wherry homes was approved. They will be assigned as public quarters.

The Committee also gave its approval to proposed construction of 45 Capehart units at Ft. Crowder Disciplinary Barracks, Mo.; 42 at the Navy Mine Defense Laboratory, Panama City, Fla.; 510 at Harvey Point Seaplane Facility, N. C.; and 70 for an Air Force project at Klamath Falls, Ore.

CAMBODIA AID CHIEF

Former commanding officer of the Ft. Sill, Okla., 17th Field Artillery Group, Brig. Gen. Edwin S. Hartshorn, jr., USA, has been named Chief, Military Assistance Advisory Group, Cambodia.

Effective in June, General Hartshorn will succeed Maj. Gen. George O. N. Lodeen, USA, who has been promoted to Deputy Director for Logistics, office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Washington, D. C.

Military Families Get VIP Auto Tags

The private automobiles of 50 military families in Washington, D. C. carry the coveted "VIP" license plates this year.

A list of 1200 low-tag holders released by the District of Columbia includes the names of Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker, Secretary of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN, Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Also represented are three former Secretaries of the Navy: John L. Sullivan, Charles S. Thomas and Dan A. Kimball. Mr. Sullivan's number, "110," immediately precedes that assigned to Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Topping the Service list is Brig. Gen. Thomas A. Lane, USA, whose license plate is number "3." General Lane is one of the three Commissioners who guide the affairs of the District.

The second lowest number among the military families is "6," which went to Admiral Radford.

Maj. Gen. Louis W. Prentiss, USA-Ret, a former D. C. Commissioner, holds two "VIP" license plates—numbers "31" and "485."

The Army garnered 35 of the tags, the Navy 14, the Air Force two and the Marine Corps none.

Army Reserve Change

The Army will shift 700,000 Enlisted Reservists from the Ready Reserve to the Standby Reserve before 1 July.

The action is being taken to reduce the strength of Reserve components to the 1,448,000 level set by the Defense Department.

By 30 June the Army's Reserve Components will include a National Guard of 400,000 and an Army Reserve 1,048,000.

The National Guard is not affected by the new screening program.

Immediately affected are Ready Reservists who incurred eight year obligations before 1 June 1953. Reservists in this category may elect to return to the Ready Reserve by volunteering for a unit assignment in the Guard or Reserve.

The Army said this group represents "the least military potential because of their time away from training."

After 1 July, the Army estimates that the monthly input into the Ready Reserve will be about 20,000.

PX Hearings On Hill

From first page—

which has been acting as a referee in the PX skirmish, is expected to complete hearings next week.

The Subcommittee has heard the Pentagon's arguments from Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, Chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, and the arguments of the retailers from representatives of the American Retail Federation and its member organizations.

William Burston, Manager of the Merchandising Division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association charged that "the trend among the PX's is to set up junior department stores." And, he said, "What is additionally disturbing is that relatives and friends also join this feast at the retailer's expense." If the new exchange list is approved, he told the committee, "PX's will be adding 4,000 items to the thousands they now carry."

Mr. Burston supplied a "forecast of actual items" PX's would have to stock if permitted to expand their sales. A number of items on the list were challenged by Committee Counsel Robert W. Smart, who pointed out that sweaters, for example, are not on the Pentagon's proposed list of additions. Mr. Burston had listed 84 sweaters as the minimum which each PX would have to stock under the new plan.

Referring to Mr. Burston's charge that friends and relatives of Servicemen also benefit from Exchange sales, Mr. Smart inquired if it was not true that retailers give their own employees substantial discounts and that these employees, in turn, buy merchandise for their friends and relatives. The Retail Dry Goods executive admitted that this is common practice.

Mr. Burston urged the Subcommittee to deny the proposed expansion and to require PX's, except those in remote localities, to reduce their stocks.

He said exchange sales, in effect, require retailers to shoulder more than their fair share of the burden of supporting the Armed Forces. Fringe benefits such as exchange privileges are designed to stimulate enlistment and retention of career Servicemen, he noted, but it would be better to "adopt the Cordier Committee proposals for merit increases and/or increase the services' pay" to accomplish this purpose.

Louis Rothschild, Executive Director of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers, testified in opposition to the proposal to sell men's and boy's sport coats in exchanges. He said this expansion "would add another serious burden to the operating difficulties of small retailers."

MR. ROTHSCHILD CHARGED that the Services are violating present restrictions on men's trousers. The current exchange list authorizes the Services to sell "pants for active sports," he said, but "the Armed Services are stocking and selling a full line of fine dress and street trousers." He said he has learned that Andrews AFB, Md., has a "complete stock of dress pants" which "would do justice and probably be more complete and larger than the finest men's store in Washington, D. C."

He urged the committee to turn down

Former Infantryman To Head AF; Engineer Grad Will Be Vice CofS

A FORMER Infantryman and an Engineer graduate from Ohio State University will take over direction of the Air Force this summer.

They are General Thomas D. White, USAF, who was graduated from West Point on 2 July 1920, commissioned as an Infantry second lieutenant and immediately promoted to first lieutenant.

He has been Vice Chief of Staff since 30 June 1953 under General Nathan F. Twining, USAF, who becomes Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

New Vice Chief of Staff will be General Curtis E. LeMay, USAF, who was graduated from Ohio State in June 1928.

General White will be 56 on 6 August; General LeMay will be 51 on 15 November.

General LeMay comes to the Pentagon after service as Commander of the Strategic Air Command since October 1948.

It's interesting to note that General White and General LeMay hold the same date of rank as permanent major generals—19 Feb. 1943. General LeMay holds four-star rank from 29 October 1951; General White, from 30 June 1953.

Exchange Chief Blasts "Pressure Tactics" Of Retailers; Cites Need For PX Expansion

MAJ. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, lashed out this week at the "pressure tactics" of retail associations who are opposing the Pentagon's "modest" plans to expand PX sales.

In a hard-hitting defense of Service exchange needs, General Parks told the Philbin House Armed Services Subcommittee that industry has "not only caught up with military services but has surpassed us" in providing fringe benefits for employees.

He noted that retail groups alleged in earlier testimony that exchange benefits are of questionable value in the Services' reenlistment program. But, he told the committee, surveys show that PX privileges are "one of the primary considerations of the enlisted man" in making a reenlistment decision.

Maj. Gen. Parks

Furthermore, he said, spokesmen for the retailers have themselves testified that it is common practice for retail establishments to give their employees the privilege of discount buying. This means, he said, that they acknowledge the value of such a fringe benefit in their own employee programs in providing greater personnel stability and job satisfaction.

The Chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service read a 26-page statement of rebuttal in which he ripped apart arguments against the proposed extension.

Referring to messages which the committee has received from retail merchants protesting the Pentagon proposal, he charged that the retail associations canvassed their members and "enjoined them to register their protests."

If the committee wants letters and telegrams, he declared, "I can assure you that if you will give me about ten days you will be literally swamped with them, not only from our military personnel and their families, but from the veterans' organizations, the National Guard and Reserve Associations, civic organizations, and from many influential business, civic and political leaders."

Letters and messages solicited by the retail associations, General Parks charged, represent "just one of the pressure tactics being used by them to force their will upon the members of this Subcommittee." He said the military services "do not subscribe to these tactics and feel confident that the Subcommittee will make up its own mind, rightly and justly, based upon the facts presented."

The Exchange Chief noted that one witness had testified that discount and off-list selling by retail stores and industrial concerns is "decreasing." This, he said, "is quite contrary to all the current information I have read in various publications."

General Parks cited statistics to show that more than 13 million families throughout the nation buy some or many of their needs at discount or off-list prices.

"Consider then," he told the committee, "that the exchange domestic retail sales add up to a mere one-fourth of one per cent in the total retail sales volume in our country."

Gen. Lemnitzer Leaves UN 1 July For Vice CofS Post

General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, USA, Commander-in-Chief United Nations Command in Korea, will be relieved 1 July 1957 by General George H. Decker, USA, presently the Deputy Commander-in-Chief U. S. Forces Europe.

On that date the Far East Command, of which General Lemnitzer is also the Commander-in-Chief, will be disestablished and its forces will come under CINCPAC.

General Lemnitzer will return to Washington to assume the duties of Vice Chief of Staff. General Decker's Headquarters as Commander-in-Chief United Nations Command will be located in Seoul, Korea. General Decker will also be assigned as Commander U. S. Forces Korea and Commanding General Eighth Army.

General Williston B. Palmer, USA, present Vice Chief of Staff, will become Deputy Commander-in-Chief, US EUCOM.

General Isaac D. White, USA, present Commanding General AFCE/8th Army, will become Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Army Pacific, with station in Hawaii, effective 1 July.

Careerist Housing

not favor an across-the-board program to meet the family housing requirements of the lower pay grades at this time," but believes that "first attention" should be given to career officers and NCO's.

The Pentagon Properties and Installations Chief told the Committee that the Secretary of Defense has approved the construction of 92,796 Capehart housing units as of 22 March, and that 14,226 of these are "under contract."

Of those under contract, 8,630 are for the Army, 5161 Air Force, and 435 for the Navy. Chairman Rivers suggested that someone "build a fire" under the Navy.

Mr. Bryant said the present suspension of the Capehart program, due to a shortage of Federal mortgage funds, will be lifted shortly. Priorities will go to those installations "where there is little or no housing," he told the Committee.

The bulk of presently approved projects, Mr. Bryant said, will be permitted to proceed to the extent of availability of private funds.

for sale in Service Exchanges was based on the standard of living in 1949, he noted. "No expansion has been made or requested to that list since the 1949 agreement. Surely, our request for the few additional items cannot be regarded as unreasonable when related to the 1957 American standard of living."

The General recalled that the committee had "heard a great deal about the unfairness and inequity of requiring the retailers to bear the onerous burden of competition from service exchanges," but, he said, the retailers did not mention "the benefits they derive from our military installations and the exchanges."

COL. SMART IS NO EXHIBIT

House Armed Services Committee members learned this week that their distinguished Chief Counsel, Col. Robert W. Smart, USAFR, is not only an able lawyer and skilled mentor, but a model of sartorial elegance as well.

This intelligence was conveyed to the committee (or, more specifically, to the Philbin Subcommittee) by a man who should know—Mr. Louis Rothschild, Executive Director of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers.

Mr. Rothschild appeared before the Subcommittee to oppose a Defense Department proposal to add sport coats to the list of items which can be sold in Service Exchanges. He said his Association doesn't like the idea at all. Sport coats are no longer worn just for sports, he declared; today they are items of daily wear for both business and social activities.

For example, Mr. Rothschild pointed out, Colonel Smart was dressed in unmatched coat and trousers, and "very properly so." Three times the clothiers' representative referred to the Chief Counsel's "fashionable" attire. Very natty, he told the subcommittee.

Colonel Smart, who maintains an air of calm impartiality at all times, finally was forced to comment. Perhaps with the thought that he should not be placed in the position of supporting either the Pentagon view or the view of the clothing people, he said, "Mr. Chairman, I should like to interject at this point that I did not dress as an exhibit for this hearing this morning."

There was general laughter. Chairman Philbin said he and the members of the committee "were pleased to learn that Colonel Smart had such excellent taste in his wearing apparel."

The Electronic Classroom—RCA adds a new world of sight and sound to the "3 R's"

Today's classroom is no longer bounded by books and blackboards. For our children, school is big as the world of sight and sound itself.

RCA has sent the electron to school—in TV sets, radios, "Victrolas,"® records, tape recorders, film projectors. And with all this, valued help for teachers who must make fullest use of our overcrowded classrooms.

Picture a civics class listening to a vital debate in the UN . . . a youngster improving his diction with the help of a tape recorder . . . kindergartners dancing to folk music of a faraway country . . . internes watching an operation close-up on closed-circuit TV . . . The applications are endless.

Through its leadership in electronics, RCA contributes a great deal to the success of this new and broader kind of education. In fact, helping our oncoming generation to see, to hear . . . to understand . . . is one of the most important jobs we do.

Philippine Government Cites MAG-16 Pilots

Philippine Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao has awarded the Legion of Honor to six Marines for their "gallant conduct" during the recovery operations at the scene of the tragic death of Ramon Magsaysay on Cebu Island.

The Leathernecks, members of Marine Air Group 16, were taking part in "Exercise Beacon Hill" when word was received that the missing plane carrying the late President Magsaysay had been reported located 17 March on the side of densely forested Mount Manungal on Cebu. The Marines immediately diverted to Cebu where they placed themselves at the disposal of the Philippine Government. They flew officials, including the brother of the late President, over dense jungles to the site of the crash at Pinatubo. Flying continuously until after dark, the MAG-16 helicopters transported men and equipment in and out of the area.

Led by Capt. Frank M. Huglin, USMCR, the pilots included 1st Lt. James R. Lindsay, USMCR, 1st Lt. Merle D. Janke, USMC, 2d Lt. J. S. Chastain, USMC, T/Sgt. M. D. Henry, USMC, and Sgt. Fred T. Krabbe, USMC. They normally are stationed at Naval Air Facility, Oppama, Japan, and are members of Marine Light Helicopter Squadron 162.

267 Marines Win Tracks

A Marine Corps selection board has picked 267 Reserve officers for Captain rank.

The board, which met on 19 February, was headed by Col. Reynolds H. Hayden, USMC, who is serving on the Staff of Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, USN, Chief of Naval Operations.

All selectees are on inactive duty.

Navy Gains 938 Officers; Ens. Thomas Tops Class

The Navy gained 938 officers recently when the 30th Officer Candidate Class was graduated from the U. S. Naval School, Newport, R. I.

Honor man was Ens. Warren H. Thomas, USNR, who amassed a 3.67 scholastic average. His first duty assignment will be at the Civil Engineering Corps Officer School, Port Hueneme, Calif.

SMALL JET ENGINES... CHAMPION WEIGHT LIFTERS

COMPARISON OF LIFTING CAPACITY OF POWER SYSTEMS

How the new family of Fairchild Small Jet Engines compare with other mechanical lifting systems.

An entirely new family of aircraft will evolve from a new family of small light-weight jet engines now under development at the Fairchild Engine Division. These new powerplants will feature incredibly high thrusts and great lifting power... yet will be so light they can easily be carried by two men.

Highly compact, with low frontal areas, the small jet engines will deliver thrust/weight ratios starting at 8 to 1 with a long range potential of more than 10 to 1. They will be used in the high performance, lightweight trainers, interceptors, target drones, pilotless aircraft including missiles and intermediate class passenger and cargo jets of the nineteen sixties. They will also be used to power fighters and utility cargo craft, executive aircraft... and will make jet Short Take Off and Landing (STOL) and Vertical Take Off and Landing (VTOL) aircraft practical.

The small jet engine may be used singly, in pairs and in clusters. It provides multi-engine reliability in aircraft of a size now wholly dependent on a single engine. The small jet engine will produce greater versatility and utility in airplanes of tomorrow.

The extensive research facilities at Fairchild Engine Division have been designed solely to test performance of the small jet engine. They range from full scale, high altitude test chambers to supersonic research for component design. Fairchild Engine Division has spent a decade in the design, development and production of small, powerful jet engines.

SAC's 8th AF Establishes Flying Safety Record

Eighth Air Force bases in 1956 established the lowest flying safety record ever made by a numbered Air Force in Strategic Air Command.

The Eighth's mark of 6.9 accidents per 100,000 flying hours was the best in the 10 year history of SAC, highlighted by a rate of 6.5 for the last six months of 1956, also a record for a similar period by a SAC numbered Air Force.

The 1956 SAC-wide rate was 9.1, down from 11.4 in 1955.

The Eighth Air Force fly safe performance figures were announced by Maj. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney, jr., USAF, Eighth Air Force Commander, whose command now encompasses 14 bases from Kansas to Greenland.

Major factors in lowering the SAC average were emphasis on incident reporting and a broad new supervisory program embracing flight scheduling, tower control, maintenance and briefing procedures. One new supervisory procedure aimed at safety places an aircraft commander, operations officer or flight commander on the ramp whenever aircraft are taxiing, taking off or landing.

Grandview Gets New Name

Lt. Gen. Joseph H. Atkinson, USAF, Commander of the Air Defense Command, will speak at ceremonies 27 April redesignating Grandview AFB, Mo., as Richards-Gebaur AFB. This base serves as headquarters for the Central Air Defense Force, commanded by Maj. Gen. Jarred V. Crabb, USAF, and also is the headquarters of the 20th Air Division, under Brig. Gen. Clifford H. Ree, USAF. The base is commanded by Col. John H. Bell, USAF.

The redesignation is a tribute to two native Missourians, Lt. John F. Richards, II, the first pilot from the area killed in combat during WW I, and Lt. Col. Arthur W. Gebaur, jr., killed in action over Korea in 1952.

The dual name was selected because the careers of the two officers link the history from the Air Force from its infancy in WW I to the modern jet age.

Daedalian Trophy Awarded To ARDC

The Air Research and Development Command, Baltimore, Md., has received the Daedalian Trophy for 1956.

The trophy is presented annually to the major command having the most effective aircraft accident prevention program. The competition is open to commands flying more than 100,000 hours.

General Thomas D. White, USAF, Vice Chief of Staff, presented the trophy to Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Power, USAF, Commander of ARDC, on 13 April at a meeting of the Order of Daedalian at Kelly AFB, Tex.

The trophy, a silver cup, was established in 1937 by the Order of Daedalian, an organization of WWI pilots. In Greek mythology, Daedalus taught his son, Icarus, to fly with wings made of wax. Icarus did not follow his father's advice on how to fly safely and as a result he perished in the sea.

Air Force Selects Permanent Captains

A selection board will convene 29 April to select Regular Air Force first lieutenants for permanent promotion to captain.

Names of all permanent grade First Lieutenants on the Line of the Air Force, Medical Corps, Dental Corps, Veterinary Corps, Medical Service Corps, Nurse Corps, Medical Specialist Corps and Chaplain Promotion Lists, who complete seven years' promotion list service prior to 1 January 1959, and who are not currently carried on Recommended Lists for permanent promotion to Captain will be submitted to the Selection Board by the Deputy Chief of Staff Personnel, Headquarters USAF, for consideration.

The fully qualified method of selection will be utilized.

The Air Force said all officers should undergo physical examination sufficiently in advance of the date they complete the required seven years' service in order that results of physical examination may arrive in Headquarters USAF prior to effective date of promotion. Physical qualification is required for promotion purposes only and is not prerequisite for consideration.

Gen. Miller To Wiesbaden After 10½ Years In D. C.

Maj. Gen. Walter I. Miller, USAF, Director of Accounting and Finance, will become Deputy Chief of Staff/Comptroller at USAF Headquarters, Wiesbaden, Germany, in early July.

General Miller, 58, holds advanced degrees from Dartmouth College, Rutgers University Graduate School of Banking, and Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

He was assigned as Director of Accounting at USAF Headquarters in July 1951 and remained in that position when the Directorates of Accounting and Finance were consolidated in July 1956.

With the exception of study at Harvard in 1950, he has been on duty in Washington since December 1946.

Col. Necrason Replaces B. G.

Col. Conrad F. Necrason, USAF, has arrived at Headquarters, Alaskan Command as Assistant Chief of Staff, Operations.

A USMA '36 graduate, Colonel Necrason arrived from Hq. USAF to replace Brig. Gen. Dolf E. Muehleisen, USAF, assigned to the Air Defense Command.

Gen. Rawlings Honored

The General William Mitchell Award of Aviators' Post No. 743 of the American Legion was presented 10 April to General Edwin W. Rawlings, USAF, Commander of the Air Materiel Command, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York. Presentation was made by Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff. The award is presented annually to the American who has done the most for aviation in the previous year. As chief of the AMC, General Rawlings administers an annual budget of $16 million. Under his direction, the Air Force supply organization of 230,000 men buys more than 1.3 million different items every year.

Air General Replies To PX Attack

Every military installation, he said, makes a significant contribution to the economy of the local community. "In many cases there was no local community until after the military base was established."

He pointed out that the average serviceman pours about 80 per cent of his pay into the economy of the local community and spends less than 20 per cent at the Service exchange.

General Parks told the Subcommittee that the 365 exchanges in the United States procure approximately $300 million worth of supplies and services from small businessmen, the bulk of which comes from the nearest local source. The exchanges also employ about 32,000 people from the local communities and pay them $74 million a year out of exchange earnings.

Exchange profits, totaling $36.7 million, went into the welfare and recreation funds of the Armed Forces during fiscal 1956, he said, and most of these funds "were expended in local communities for services, supplies and equipment."

General Parks devoted much of his testimony to a carefully documented analysis of the "inaccuracies and misstatements of fact" contained in the testimony of retail association witnesses. He ended with this statement:

"The proposal before this committee has received wide publicity throughout the Services. Our commanders throughout the services have unanimously strongly endorsed the need for these additional items in order to meet the minimum basic requirements of their servicemen and families.

"The decision of this committee with respect to our proposal will therefore have a significant effect upon the morale and welfare of every member of your armed services. I therefore urge you to give sympathetic and favorable consideration to our modest request."

CAP Fliers Busy

The Civil Air Patrol flew the equivalent of 49 times around the world during 1956 on air search and rescue and mercy missions in this country, Alaska and Hawaii. Volunteer air crews of the CAP flew a total of 12,321 hours as members of the Air Force's civilian auxiliary. These hours comprise 77 per cent of the total hours flown by all participating agencies on the missions performed under the supervision of the Air Rescue Service.

This brings the five-year average of CAP participation in air search and rescue missions for the Air Force to more than 60 per cent of all search hours flown by all agencies over this period.

TAC AND SAC PUBINFO SWITCH

TAC and SAC have just completed an officer exchange, arranged by the respective Information Services Officers, Col. E. B. LeBailly, USAF, and Col. Reade Tilley, USAF. This involved exchanging selected officers of the two information offices for one week periods.

During the first week Capt. Bob Webb, USAF, Director of Internal Information, TAC, exchanged duties with Capt. Jack Boersig, USAF, Deputy Chief of the Internal Information Division, SAC. In the second week, Maj. Ed Albany, USAF, Director of Public Information, TAC, switched jobs with 1st Lt. Don Roberts, USAF, Chief of the News Media Branch, Public Information Division, SAC.

Originally the exchange was planned to prove that qualified information services officers could switch jobs with officers of another command and, following a brief reorientation, satisfactorily fill the job. This proved to be the case. Additionally, considerable benefits were realized as by-products—exchange of ideas and techniques, understanding and appreciation for the roles and missions of the separate commands.

Armed Forces Drop 113; USAF "Drafts" 12 Men

The strength of the Armed Forces dropped a scant 113 men from 31 January to 28 February, according to preliminary Department of Defense statistics.

Total strength at the beginning of March was 2,787,348.

Both the Air Force and the Marine Corps showed losses, while the Navy and the Army picked up men.

The Air Force lost 3,102 men and the Marine Corps 770. These losses almost were offset by a gain of 3,862 in the Army. The Navy increased its manpower level by 103 enlisted men.

For the first time, the summarization of strength and recruitment figures, showed inductions into the Air Force. The report shows 12 inductions of Air Force enlisted men who failed to meet prescribed obligations in Reserve components. These men were called to active service for two years in the Air Force of the United States.

Strengths of the Armed Services are: Army, 997,255; Navy, 675,940; Air Force, 915,296, and, Marine Corps, 198,857.

AiResearch servo-controller for a pilotless guidance system

Simple servo-amplifier... actuator system achieves maximum speed of response with high stability

Because most missiles and drones are self-destructive, it is important that the components in their guidance systems be both highly accurate and dependable and be producible in quantity at low cost. The AiResearch servo-controller meets the above requirements.

Its servo-amplifier weighing less than .7 of a pound amplifies electric signals from an inertial guidance source and converts them to command signals. These in turn are transmitted to an AiResearch electrically-powered light weight linear actuator which adjusts control surfaces of missile or drone to maintain a predetermined course.

The servo-controller can operate from either a DC or AC power supply. It can also be designed to take signals from celestial, telemetering or pre-programming sources to maintain or readjust the course of its pilotless air vehicle. It is another example of the AiResearch Manufacturing Division's capability in the missile field.

Inquiries are invited regarding missile components and sub-systems relating to air data, heat transfer, electro-mechanical, auxiliary power, valves, controls, and instruments.

Air Force Leadership. The wealth of high caliber leaders in the Air Force is evidenced strongly in the current shifting about of personnel. As the Air Force Chief of Staff, General Nathan F. Twining, goes on to become Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the Secretary, Donald A. Quarles, steps up to be Deputy Secretary of Defense (with a strong likelihood of later advancement to the top Pentagon post), their vacancies will be filled, in turn, by men of the highest abilities.

Moving up to be Secretary of the Air Force is James H. Douglas, a lawyer who formerly served in the Army Air Force and who has contributed four outstanding years as Under Secretary. He has always been looked upon as a strong man for the Air Force and his elevation will be welcomed in the Service.

The office of Chief of Staff will be ably filled by General Thomas D. White, whose service as Vice Chief of Staff as well as his long record of accomplishment in the Air Force particularly fits him for this top military job. Furthermore, General White has had extensive service as air attache in Europe, Asia, South America, and Russia—a background which will stand him in good stead in evaluating and explaining the needs of the Air Force.

Succeeding General White as Vice Chief of Staff will be the colorful General Curtis L. LeMay, whose nearly nine years service as commander of the Strategic Air Command has set a peace time record of accomplishment hard to parallel in military history. In that period General LeMay, by his strength of leadership, force of character and professional ability, has built SAC, in both material and performance, to a peak of instant war-time readiness. Hard and often uncompromising, General LeMay has at the same time been in the forefront (often when it was not popular in Washington) in seeking better pay and conditions for all of his personnel, commissioned and enlisted. His presence at a top level in the Pentagon councils augurs well for personnel legislation in Congress, where his views are sought and respected.

The Air Force, holding top jobs in the Department of Defense, in NATO, and other joint commands, and with such a strong team in Washington will have a greater responsibility than ever before in shaping the guiding policies of National Defense.

Schools For Children. The shortcomings of schools for the children of Service families on duty in Europe will be brought to the attention of officials of the Department of Defense, Congress, and the National Education Association next week when Miss Mary Hoague, President of the Overseas Teachers Association, gives up her Easter vacation to come to Washington. The Association which represents more than 800 educators with the Army, Navy, and Air Force schools in France, Germany, and Italy, feels so strongly over the deficiencies in the school system there that it is financing their president's trip to tell the story and ask for remedial action.

Speaking for the Association, Miss Hoague contends that the American student in Europe is not getting a fair scholastic break. She says there aren't enough schools, there aren't enough teachers, and there is no standardization in teaching equipment and books. Furthermore, there are sharp variations between the schools run by the different services and sharp variations from year to year within the Services depending upon the whims of Congress in providing funds.

We hope Congress and the Department of Defense will give this important subject careful and thorough attention. Certainly, the children of

READERS' VIEWS

(Letters to the Editor must have author's name and address, but name will be omitted on publication if writer so states. Longer letters may be extracted for publication.)

A Medical Officer Writes Of Pay Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The content of the letter and the intent of the writer identifying himself under the relative anonymity of "Interested" in your 30 March issue is intensely disturbing. He implies physicians to believe themselves worth more than the people and social system they serve. This is defined as egoism in the study of ethics. It is contrary to the basic philosophy and tenets of true followers of Hippocrates.

On 9 June 1956, you courteously published my views concerning special monetary incentives for medical personnel. This letter pointed out that the medical problem was only the most obvious and had been singled for corrective action, but that the plight of officers, warrant officers, and professional enlisted persons of the combat arms and other services demanded attention. Medical Corps response has been enthusiastic indorsement of those views. Communications have come from hospital clinicians and field medical soldiers of all ranks.

Now the Cordiner Committee proposes partial correction of inequities yoked upon Army comrades. The good businessmen assembled by Mr. Cordiner have recognized that the executives and technicians who run the Armed Services and lead the development of second-to-none National Defense should be adequately, if not attractively, paid. They deserve solid support by the entire Army.

Simple grocery-store arithmetic applied to weekly "Resigned" sections in THE JOURNAL confirms Committee concern by revealing our alarming loss of young officers. Reflection upon the top performance records of most of this group sharply focuses the problem. Recruiting experience compounds concern. Our efficient young thinkers and junior leaders are proselyted from us to better pay in the civilian economy.

"Interested" would lead the casual reader to believe the pay of physicians will be reduced. This is not true under the Cordiner proposal. This misrepresentation of fact must stem from either deceit or lack of awareness. How any soldier can decry proposals for a general and equitable Army pay raise escapes me. How a continued beneficiary of an additional "professional differential" can complain is almost unfathomable. Only one answer is forthcoming—greed. "Interested" apparently would lead readers to believe that we military physicians are all greedy and will take our 15 to 25 years and quit if we only continue to receive an additional $100.00 per month more than our contemporaries after a general pay raise. This is plain ridiculous. It is unsound retirement economics, especially for the greedy.

But egoism, deceit, unawareness, and greed are not the mantle of the man whose fellows call him physician. If a man nurtures these characteristics and calls himself physician, his fellows will sooner or later discover him and call him quack. For holders of such philosophy, there is no place in the Army Medical Corps.

This Army physician would much prefer a common and attractive pay scale for each commissioned rank throughout the Service. The base pay suggested by Mr. Cordiner and his confreres will provide us all with relative improvement. None of us have cause for complaint even though special incentives may well be wiped out in the debate to come. The quicker we all get back into the same Army and have common purposes and incentives, the quicker we'll progress in redeveloping and maintaining our integral part of the strongest defense team in the world. And believe it or not, that's what we've all been paid for all along. Let's pay better for strong, gifted leadership and rid ourselves, as Mr. Cordiner suggests, of indecision and divisive influences.

MediCare Has Cavity

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

When will we see some action taken to revise the Medicare Act to eliminate the ridiculous provision which precludes dental care for dependents? The cost of dental care for military families, particularly those with children is as disturbing as medical or surgical costs. There appears to be no rational reason for this difference in approach.

"Garrison Soldier"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

For quite a few years now the occupants of the Pentagon have spread confusion in the Army with their continual application of that psychological dogma that "If you change the name of the rose, you can change its smell." However, recently, they have added insults to this confusion.

I have always been proud of the fact that my primary MOS is that of a Combat Commander. Recently I was assigned to a Station Complement for service duty. Since everybody has to do some of this duty, I had no objection until now. But now the official orders are out that designate me as "A Garrison Soldier"—that age old acme of military insult.

MORTIFIED

(Army officials at the Pentagon said that the term "Garrison Soldier" is not used in officer orders. These officials suggested that perhaps the problem was strictly a local matter).

Not only is the old certification system a waste of time but it is irksome to officers who must certify to every little detail when a simple signature would do the job just as well.

It is astounding that the Army Certification Review Board found more than 500 certification requirements and that it appears that only eleven of these require retention. The attack is even to be carried to the field where local commanders are reported to be prone to extend certification requirements even beyond those set forth by the Department.

Furthermore, dropping such picayunish requirements enhances the dignity and respect of the individual officer. Once more it can be said that his signature is his word.

Furthermore, it places the Medical Departments of the Armed Services in a better position to attract and hold the Nurses they need to carry on in peace the high character of medical care established during the war years.

Army Progresses In Medical Education For Handling Mass Atomic Casualties

BY COL. BYRON L. STEGER, MC
Chief, Education and Training Division
Office of The Surgeon General of the Army

IMPRESSIVE results of the pioneering done by the Army Medical Service towards preparing its physicians and their allied colleagues for nuclear warfare is making 1957 a real milestone in this movement.

It is a proper climax to ten years of untiring experiment and subsequent growth in the education and training needed to meet with appropriate medical care the after-effects of atomic hostilities. On a program begun in 1947 with a course and visual exhibits concerning the medical aspects of atomic explosion, this determination to instruct medical personnel at all levels in the life-saving techniques most effective in such a crisis, may be said to be really bearing fruit.

Col. Steger

DURING THE PAST YEAR a total of 795 professional persons from twenty different agencies and organizations, both civilian and military, in the medical field completed the course in management of mass casualties. This course was given at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Washington, D. C. and Army Medical Service School, Ft. Sam Houston, Texas.

In a separate but allied effort, the Medical Education for National Defense (MEND) program was initiated in 1952 with five medical schools participating. This number has now grown to 25. Ten more medical schools will be added in 1957 to bring the total number of participating schools to 35.

Our traveling instructional teams are also making history. These groups from Walter Reed Army Institute of Research sent to medical centers throughout the United States to stimulate interest on the part of the medical and paramedical public in the care of mass casualties. An invitation to make the presentation before NATO has been received, a likely outcome of the European tour taken within the year by the team which appeared before eleven various professional and non-professional groups.

One of the most far reaching developments in this Army Medical Service educational program in the past twelve months is our implementation of the new Army-wide, military tactical concept to have every soldier a first-aid man, if life is to be saved following a nuclear attack. Through a plan recommended by the Surgeon General of the Army, fully qualified Army Medical Service teams made up of officer and enlisted personnel are now giving basic individual first-aid instruction at all U. S. Army training centers in the United States.

Members of the teams are well qualified trainers in first-aid and are chosen for their skill in teaching as well as for their medical knowledge. Plans have been made to train during 1957, 2,100 "medics," the traditional medical aidman of battle zones, in a course of twelve weeks of concentrated and thorough instruction at the Army Medical Service School.

EIGHTH ARMY HOSPITALS are conducting a course in acute trauma. This, in addition to providing continuous training for Army medical officers and commissioned ancillary personnel, is also open to the civilian physicians and reserve medical officers in their respective communities.

And 1957 will have the second class of a new course designed for selected medical officers, the first class having been conducted 15 October to 17 November at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research. "Principles of Medical Operations in Nuclear Warfare" is the title of the course and the principles taught include a review of mathematics and theory, nuclear weapons systems, phenomenology, and human effects; medical plans training and applications.

We in the Army Medical Service are very conscious of the value of the Reserve officers and units (not on active duty) for the extension of this training in the handling of mass casualties. This year is expected to mark the issuance of special instructional material for the use of reserve units on the general subject of medical care of such injuries. The subject is regarded as a part of the over-all training given professional officers in military medicine. Refresher courses held for them at the Army Medical Service School three times annually, contain nuclear weapon material. Spaces are allocated in the management of mass casualty course for senior medical corps reservists.

THE FOREGOING 1957 HIGHLIGHTS are even more gratifying in their details. A tabulation of the personnel attending the courses in medical care of atomic casualties and management of mass casualties disclose that we have emphasized the training of physicians, both graduate and potential. This is being done and has been done because theirs is the primary responsibility in the medical care essential to nuclear calamities.

The following is the distribution of personnel for last year's total of 795 individuals:

Army Medical Corps	330
Army Dental Corps	56
Army Veterinary Corps	33
Army Nurse Corps	56
Army Medical Service Corps	55

The maximum class capacity for the Management of Mass Casualties course at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research is 100 students and the class length is five and one-half days. This same course as conducted at the Army Medical Service School also lasts five and one-half days and has a maximum class capacity of 80 persons.

While this instruction is the central point of the Army Medical Service educational program of preparation, many radii of allied information are being channelled to those who will work beside the physician if the need should ever arise. Nurses, dentists, veterinarians, certain members of the Medical Service Corps and the Army Medical Specialist Corps will render emergency and definitive medical care commensurate with their abilities. Clinical specialists, aidmen and hospital corpsmen are being taught to carry a greater share of the professional and logistical load.

THE ARMY NURSE CORPS has held its first workshop devoted entirely to the study of nursing service in the medical management of mass casualties. It was held in October 1956, and the second is programmed for June 1957. The course is conducted at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research and has a class capacity of 70 students: 40 Army nurses, 21 Army Nurse Corps reserves (not on active duty) and 9 civilian RNs.

At the same time the comprehensive nurse education programs formulated by their Corps are being geared to point up the responsibilities of nursing service in the management of mass casualties.

NO ONE HAS BEEN OMITTED from this all-inclusive readiness for service. A new Army regulation being put into operation makes it mandatory on those answerable for our hospital functioning to give 16 hours of training in disaster nursing to non-professional nursing assistants (GS #2 and GS #3) during their job orientation. Training of interns and residents, too, is being altered to meet the demands for intelligent behavior under the stress of nuclear attacks. More and more subjects of disaster medicine and the surgery of trauma are finding their way into the teaching of these young men. Fortunately, today the percentage of teaching staffs which have been exposed to nuclear warfare subjects, is large enough to make such instruction possible.

In considering those outside the military ranks with whom the Army Medical Service has contact for the purpose of co-operating in the training for medical care of mass casualties, our deepest and widest medium is probably the Medical Education for National Defense (MEND) program. Students in the medical schools comprising this group offer potential help in the time of nuclear disaster in three categories. (1) They may participate in civil defense and disaster aid with growing levels of responsibility; (2) they may be medical officers who have come on active duty after being graduated; (3) they may be civilian physicians beginning their practice and thus available for their own community's aid.

THESE SCHOOLS OF MEDICINE are reaching perimeters far beyond their own physical boundaries. For instance, the University of Washington School of Medicine in 1956 promoted a public forum and post-graduate course on management of mass casualties under the auspices of MEND that was open to physicians from Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia as well as those from the entire state of Washington. The state and county medical societies and the state civil defense organizations gave their help to the occasion, making a regional "togetherness" that touched all sides of medical preparation for disaster.

The original five of these medical schools making up MEND were: University of Buffalo, University of California Medical Center, University of Illinois, Cornell University and Vanderbilt University. Those added to the group up to the close of the 1955-56 scholastic year: University of Colorado, Georgetown University, University of Washington, Ohio State University, University of Wisconsin, Medical College of Virginia, University of Pennsylvania, Emory University, Baylor University, Tufts College of Medicine and the University of Michigan. Those entering at the beginning of the 1956-57 year: Duke University, New York University, Temple University, Washington University (St. Louis, Mo.), University of California (Los Angeles), University of Kansas, Louisiana State University, University of Maryland and the University of Michigan. The University of Michigan is listed twice since it was in the program without financial assistance previously and in 1956 became a member on the same basis as the other schools.

IF THE BENEFICIAL EFFECT of so many young, future physicians receiving instruction in the care of mass casualties along with their study of technical medical topics is certain to be a national defense asset, the new first-aid training concept for the American soldier can have no less an impact on our population. The soldier will return to his home community with more knowledge of how to save his own life or that of his fellows than any non-medical soldier since the United States Army was founded.

This plan as it is in use at the moment, has an interesting genesis. In the summer of 1954, Maj. Gen. Silas B. Hayes, The Surgeon General of the Army, formed an Ad Hoc Committee on Emergency Care of Casualties. Dr. Howard Snyder of Winfield, Kansas, was named chairman and the membership included: Maj. Gen. James P. Cooney, now Deputy Surgeon General of the Army but then associated with the Army Medical School; Brig. Gen. Crawford Sams, now retired, then 1st Army Surgeon; Lt. Col. Douglas Lindsay, then of the Medical Training Center at Brooke Army Medical Center but now with the Medical Service Board; Dr. Henry Royster, University of Pennsylvania; and Dr. Russel Scott, University of Michigan.

These physicians were asked to find the answers to two questions: (1) What training should be given medical aid men so they can do a more effective job of saving lives; (2) What training should be given the non-medical soldier so he can do the maximum to save his own life and those of his comrades when wounded.

CONSIDERABLE STUDY AND COMMENT was made of the committee report on this assignment. Based on this report and other studies available to the Office of the Surgeon General of the Army, the Army Medical Service recommended that more instruction—about three times as much—be given the aid-man and that the non-medical soldier be given first-aid training during his basic instruction period. After certain changes and suggestions, the plan was put into effect as was described earlier in this writing.

We know from past experience that many things will occur for which we cannot possibly prepare but we also know that chances of survival vary with the degree of preparation.

Our mission as the Army Medical Service will continue to be the focusing of the problems inherent in the medical care of mass casualties of nuclear warfare and the study of better ways and means towards accomplishing the solutions of such problems.

This means we must all be missionaries and teachers so far as we can, that we must keep out initiative, interest and effort at working pitch. It will be worth the effort if we can accomplish in the next ten years what our Army Medical Service has achieved over the past decade.

LONDON DISARMAMENT TALKS reenforce Pentagon arguments in support of the Cordiner Pay Plan. Service chiefs say that it will be possible to cut thousands of men from active duty ranks and not peril national security if retention rates are raised. They say that the new pay program is a large part of the answer.

LYLE S. GARLOCK, now Assistant AF Sec'y for Financial Management after prior service as Deputy to Assistant SecDef (Comptroller) W. J. McNeil, is expected to move up another Pentagon notch to become AF UnderSec'y. He would replace Mr. James H. Douglas, Jr., who has been designated to succeed Mr. Donald A. Quarles as Sec'y. A GOOD PROSPECT to take over Mr. Garlock's job is his Deputy for Audits and Accounts, Robert Benson.

WHOLESALE SHIFTS of top Army and Air Force officers are in the offing. It's the aftermath of the key changes that will bring General Lyman L. Lemnitzer and General Curtis E. LeMay to the Pentagon as Vice Chiefs of Staff.

THE ARMY'S ATOMIC COMMAND at Verona, Italy, has been given an increased aviation authorization. It had been planned to spend $220,000 for an airfield there, but now $398,000 has been asked to handle 8 fixed wing aircraft and 8 helicopters.

A NEW SLIM NECKTIE is being tested for Marines. It's long, too; extends to the wearer's belt line.

THE ARMY BAND leaves 8 May for a 10-week concert tour of Europe. A high spot will be performances in Yugoslavia. The itinerary calls for appearances in 12 countries and 44 major cities.

SERVICE BANDS will take a prominent part in the 350th anniversary celebration of the Colonial Landings at Jamestown, Va. The TAC Band from Langley AFB, Va., will make 210 appearances during seven weeks of the eight-month festival, alternating with Army Bands from Ft. Monroe and Ft. Eustis, Va.

THE NAVY OPPOSES a proposal by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-NY) that an Ethiopian be admitted to Annapolis. "Preferential and discriminatory," the Navy asserts, adding that a study is being made into the possibility of expanding present strength at USNA to provide for admission of more foreign students.

THE AF HAS ORDERED that special precautions be taken to prevent inadvertent firing of ammunition particularly the 2.75 inch rocket, from aircraft on the flight line. Says the AF: "The seriousness of such accidents—which cannot be overemphasized—will increase as other rockets and missiles of larger caliber are introduced into operating units."

THE PHONE BILL for the Air Defense Command is expected to reach almost $1 a year for every person in the U.S. Current outlay is $26 million annually, but a sharp increase to $150 million is anticipated with full operation of the SAGE system.

A MIDWEEK VISIT TO WASHINGTON by General Laurence S. Kuter, USAF, head of FEAF, raised speculation that he will be given a new assignment momentarily. Some suggest the possibility of his getting SAC as a successor for General Curtis E. LeMay, Vice CofS-designate. General E. M. Rawlings, USAF, longtime chief of the Air Materiel Command, also is considered by many in the Air Force as a possible new C-in-C for SAC. AT THE THREE STAR LEVEL, speculation for the SAC job centers around Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, USAF, Deputy CofS, Personnel. IT WILL BE INTERESTING to see whether some policies which are now exclusively employed by SAC—"spot promotion" for officers is an example—will be expanded Air Force-wide when General LeMay moves from Offutt AFB, Nebr., to the Pentagon. General LeMay has been an advocate of a Limited Duty Officer concept for SAC; he can be expected to advocate this action in his new assignment.

LIKE THE NAVY AND AIR FORCE, the Army has started to train foreign aviators. 1st Lt. Angel C. Romero of the Spanish Air Force now is undergoing training with a class of Army pilots at Camp Gary, Tex.

WEST POINT FOOTBALL COACHES likely will clip and save a speech made 4 April by Maj. Gen. James E. Briggs, USAF, Superintendent of the U.S. Air Force Academy. He told of the growing intercollegiate sports schedule at the new Service Academy, then added: "In 1959, we will play and beat the Army."

THE ARMY IS MAKING A STRONG BID to encourage increasing numbers of top notch draftees to apply for commissions. Many soldiers entering the Army through Selective Service hold advanced college degrees.

"EYE APPEAL" salads and desserts are being served to U. S. Naval Academy Midshipmen in order to entice them into balancing their diets. Faced with the fact that the young Midshipmen tend to be "meat and potato" boys who pass up green-leaf nutrients, the Academy Commissary Staff requested the services of a General Foods Corp., dietitian. As a "public service," General Foods sent Miss Gerry deMauro to the Academy to tackle the palate problem. She was the first woman ever to be brought into the Academy's Commissary and Mess Department and the first dietitian to serve there in 110 years.

THE AF'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY celebration will shoot off to a supersonic start during an Aerial Firepower Show 6 May at Eglin AFB, Fla. Thousands of spectators at Eglin will see tiny Nieuports and SPADS of WWI, as well as B-52's and Century Series speeders like the F-100 Super Sabre, F-102 interceptors, F-104 Starfighters and F-101 Voodoes. The anniversary activities will be climaxed at the August convention of the Air Force Association in Washington. THAT CONVENTION WILL TAKE PLACE at a time present AF Sec'y Quarles will be Deputy Defense Secretary, when present AF CofS Twining will be Chairman of the JCS, and when another air leader, General Norstad, is Supreme Allied Commander Europe.

MILITARY LEADERS who have testified before the House Appropriations Committee have not detected any strong indications that the legislators are out to make major cuts in the fiscal '58 budget. But Pentagon veterans know that looks sometimes can be deceiving when it comes to appropriations. THE FEAR REMAINS that in sending the $38 million money bill to the floor, the Committee will make last-minute percentage slashes on an arbitrary basis.

SHIFT ARMY UNITS IN ENGLAND

The Army's 32d AAA Brigade Headquarters and the 928th Engineer Group, which have been stationed in England for the past six years, will be moved from Britain this year.

A Pentagon announcement said:

"The specialized functions these units performed have been largely completed. The movement is essentially a normal redeployment." About 4400 men are involved.

The 32d AAA Brigade, which is equipped with the 75mm Skysweeper anti-aircraft artillery gun, has been employed for air defense of certain bases used by U.S. Forces. The 928th Engineer Group has been employed primarily on construction projects at bases used by the Strategic Air Command in Britain. Urgent construction projects for which this group was brought to Britain have been completed.

IT BELONGS AMONG THE BLUE CHIPS ... for Returns and Protection

For returns in dividends, your USAA automobile policy belongs among the "blue chips."

The savings to stateside USAA automobile policyholders currently amounts to 36% of manual rates—yet you enjoy the same adequate insurance protection offered by other highly rated companies.

Approximately 300,000 US Armed Forces officers already know this and that is why they are insured with USAA.

The liberal savings offered are possible because USAA operates as a non-profit association. Operating costs are kept down. No salesmen are employed nor are any commissions paid. Selling is done by mail, and eligibility is aimed at a preferred risk group.*

USAA has been serving officers with insurance since 1922. Throughout the United States and in the foreign areas served by USAA are attorneys and claims adjusters to promptly serve members in the event of an accident.

When it's time to insure... insure with confidence... give yourself the best and save too. Insure with USAA.

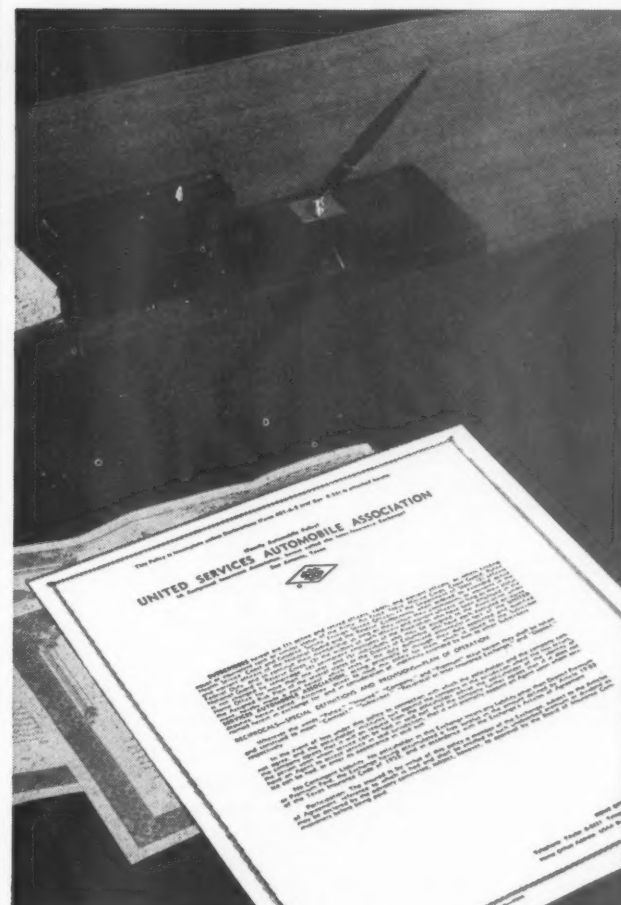

No matter whether you are stateside, or overseas, USAA is as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office. Your USAA insurance becomes effective as of postmarked time of application, unless a later date is specified.

AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION

Charles E. Cheever, Colonel, USA - Retired, President

Dept. AJ-3, USAA Building, 4119 Broadway, San Antonio 9, Tex.

* Membership in USAA is limited to active and retired officers, cadets and warrant officers of the U. S. Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service, Coast and Geodetic Survey; officers and warrant officers of the National Guard and Reserve when ordered to extended active Federal duty, (afterwards in civilian life they may continue or later renew their insurance, so long as they retain their commissions or warrants in the National Guard or Reserve); the widows of such officers and warrant officers so long as their status is not changed by remarriage.

USAA operates in the United States, its possessions and territories; Canada, Cuba and the Canal Zone; Japan, the Philippines, and certain U. S. bases in the Pacific, as well as in Western Continental Europe.

TELEPHONE MEN AND WOMEN attend one of the training courses in day-to-day matters of telephone service, employee and public relations. These particular courses are for management people in the Bell Telephone Companies throughout the country. There are many other Bell System programs for the training and advancement of telephone people at various stages of their careers. They include broad liberal arts courses at leading universities as well as schools within the business for executives.

"From the building of people comes the progress of the business"

Bell System's management training programs benefit telephone users and the company as well as telephone men and women.

There is nothing more important to good telephone service and to the future of the business than the finding and developing of capable people.

The Bell System has long been among the leaders in this field and it has pioneered many new methods for the training of telephone men and women at various stages of their careers.

What we aim to do is to provide both the opportunity and the preparation for a better job. The long-standing policy of making promotions from the ranks also helps to assure the continuing know-how and spirit of the organization.

This in turn brings far-reaching benefits to all who use the telephone and to the progress of the company. It is an important reason for today's good service and the solid foundation for still better things to come.

Working together to bring people together... Bell Telephone System

NEW VOODOO PASSES FLIGHT TESTS

The first test flights of the Air Force's newest supersonic jet interceptor, the McDonnell F-101B Voodoo, have been successfully completed.

Designed to operate in all-weather conditions, the Voodoo was first flown on 27 March 1957, from Lambert Municipal Airport, St. Louis, Mo. It is a two-seat long-range interceptor, carrying pilot and radar observer to extremely high altitudes at supersonic speeds.

Powered by two Pratt and Whitney J-57 jet engines, the F-101B has a very high rate of climb to operating altitudes. It will be assigned to the Air Defense Command. The RF-101A has been assigned to the Tactical Air Command for Photo-reconnaissance missions, and the F-101A is to be assigned to TAC as a fighter-bomber.

Ft. Rucker Wives Club Enlarges Nursery

BRIG. GEN. CARL I. HUTTON, USA, CG of Ft. Rucker and the Army Aviation School; Mrs. Alexander J. Rankin, chairman of the nursery, and Mrs. Hutton, honorary president of the Officers' Wives Club, cut the pink and blue ribbon marking the opening of the new nursery.

FT. RUCKER, ALA. — The nursery has been moved to a larger building in order to accommodate the children of military and civilian personnel here at The Army Aviation Center.

Sponsored by the Ft. Rucker Officers' Wives Club the new nursery now has 30 cribs for infants and sleeping facilities for 50 larger children.

The Officers' Wives Club recently contributed $800 for the purchase of cribs, play pens and other equipment for the amusement and comfort of the children. Work is now underway for the construction of an outdoor play yard complete with white picket fence, sand boxes and swings.

Interested military personnel, both single and married, contributed innumerable hours constructing toys and equipment for the nursery. One ingenious group collected discarded oil drums, polished them down for safety, painted them red and made a tunnel through which the children crawl. Another project is the construction of a row boat which will be permanently anchored, but rowed many miles by the older children.

The need for a larger nursery was acutely felt the Saturday night before the formal opening when only 102 children of parents attending dances at Ft.

Rucker could be accommodated. Serving on the nursery committee are Mrs. A. J. Rankin, chairman; Mrs. R. R. Williams, co-chairman; Mrs. W. M. Cozart, secretary; Mrs. N. A. Mahone, ways and means; Mrs. A. D. Cunningham, recreation; Mrs. C. H. Rooney, supplies; and Mrs. G. Komar, treasurer.

Mrs. Twining Presents Cup To 10,000th Baby

Debra Gail Pyburn was presented with the Twining Cup on 28 March by Mrs. Nathan F. Twining, wife of the Chief of Staff of the Air Force. Little Debra Gail was the 10,000th baby born at the Bolling Air Force Base Hospital, and it was for this special achievement that she received the engraved silver cup bearing the Twining name.

The custom of presenting a silver cup to every thousandth baby born at the Bolling AFB Hospital was initiated by General and Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenberg and Mrs. Vandenberg presented the first cup in 1947 as a symbol of their genuine interest in the personnel of the Air Force. Wanting to continue this tradition, the Air Force Officers' Wives' Club of Washington became sponsors of the silver cup to be known by the name of the Chief of Staff serving at the time of the presentation and presented by his lady. Five boys and five girls have received the cup.

Debra Gail was born on 23 Jan., the same day as Princess Caroline of Monaco. She is the daughter of S/Sgt. and Mrs. Claude Pyburn. Sergeant Pyburn has been assigned to the 1102d Base Flight Squadron for three years and they live in the Bolling Trailer Court with their son, Steven, who is three years old. Sergeant and Mrs. Pyburn are both from Wallace, Idaho, where they met in high school.

DEBRA GAIL PYBURN lets the world know her appreciation of the Twining Cup presented to her by the wife of the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, right. Holding Debra is her mother, Mrs. Claude Pyburn, wife of Staff Sergeant Pyburn.

The pretty blue dress and bonnet were sent especially for the occasion by Debra Gail's grandmother.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey
Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond

SECRETARY of the Treasury George M. Humphrey has asked the Senate to restore $8.2 million for the procurement of aircraft to the Coast Guard budget.

This amount was slashed from the Coast Guard budget request by the House when the Treasury Department failed to submit a report to the Appropriations Committee which had been requested last year. The Committee rejected the request for funds for procurement of long-range patrol planes on the grounds that it could not act intelligently without all the facts. Said the Committee: "This request was the culmination of several years of fruitless inquiry as to when the Administration would complete its study of the aircraft replacement program."

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

DEFENSE TEAM—Lt. Col. Joseph P. Henry, USA, until recently post transportation officer at the Command and General Staff School, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., receives a certificate and congratulations from Glenn W. Poorman, a vice president and director of Esso Standard Oil Company, on completion of a six-month course in traffic management given by Esso Standard. It is part of the Defense Department's "Training with Industry" program.

Capt. George N. Bech, Jr., left, USAF, of Kirtland AFB, N. M., took the course with Colonel Henry and received similar recognition. As part of the training, the officers visited refineries, petroleum bulk plants and port installations, rode a barge-tow down the Mississippi and made a trip on an oceangoing tanker. Colonel Henry is continuing his traffic-management training with the Western Electric Company, and Captain Bech soon goes to Europe for assignment with the Cargo Movements Division Headquarters, Central Air Materiel Area, in Chateauroux, France.

4-Engine Assault And Resupply Aircraft Proposed For Navy And Marine Corps Use

A new utility assault aircraft capable of operating either from carrier decks or from extremely short, unimproved fields has been proposed to the Navy by Douglas Aircraft Company.

Known thus far only as the Douglas Model 1906A, the airplane has been designed for fleet aerial resupply and Marine light assault missions.

The 1906A, Douglas announces, has been under engineering study for the past several years and is in the advanced design stage. Work on the new model has been financed entirely by the company.

It is a conventionally-arranged aircraft powered by four Lycoming T-55 turbo-prop engines on a high fixed wing which incorporates a high-lift flap system. Wingspan is 102 feet 5 inches; length, 88 feet 2 inches; and height of the tail is 36 feet 8 inches. Speed ranges from 270 MPH to 315 MPH.

The basic 1906A has arresting and catapult hooks for operations from aircraft carriers. Flying from shore bases, it can carry a 15,000 pound payload a distance of 1500 nautical miles to a task force at sea.

Equipped with quickly-attachable skis, the 1906A becomes a Marine assault plane capable of operating into and out of mud fields, sandy beaches or snow covered sites with 400 feet of ground run. The ski arrangement does not interfere with operations from carriers or prepared fields.

Douglas Model 1906A has a cargo compartment with 2620 cubic feet of usable space. The large, rear cargo door, at truck-bed height, has an integral ramp like that of the C-133 and C-132 transports. Clearance permits moving an object 15 feet long by eight feet square directly from a truck to the cargo ramp sill and thence into the compartment.

With seats installed in the compartment and cargo ramp, a maximum of 58 troops may be accommodated. A pressurized compartment is provided for the two-man crew, plus a relief crew.

Should the aircraft become damaged aboard the carrier, provisions are made for prompt flyaway. The 1906A may be flown from the carrier with one engine inoperative or catapulted with any two engines inoperative carrying sufficient fuel to return to a rear maintenance base.

Should the landing gear be damaged, the airplane may be flown from the ship with gear retracted.

T-37 Jet Trainer Gets

All-Weather Testing

The Air Force's first primary jet trainer is undergoing extensive all-weather (Phase V) testing at the Air Research and Development Command's Wright Air Development Center, Dayton, Ohio.

Scheduled to be used by the Air Force in introducing student pilots to jet flying, the Cessna T-37 is being test flown in both natural and man-made adverse weather, such as rain, thunderstorms, fog and especially icing conditions.

Maj. Wilbur H. Leff, Wright Air Development Center (WADC) is test pilot for the T-37 tests. Phase V project officer for adverse weather testing is Capt. Jerry Hanjian. Development of the T-37 is under the direction of Capt. Henry B. Hall, Directorate of Systems Management, Detachment No. 1, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

$11 Million J-79 Order

The General Electric Company's Aircraft Gas Turbine Division at Cincinnati, Ohio, has been awarded an $11,000,000 military jet engine contract for J79-GE-5 engines and related items, according to Maj. Gen. E. W. Rawlings, USAF, Commander of Air Materiel Command.

The J79 turbojet powers the Convair B-58 Hustler, the Air Force's first supersonic bomber, the Lockheed F-104A Starfighter, and the Grumman F11F-1F Tiger.

Am. Cable Co. Sponsors

New Res. Signal Unit

The reactivation of a new Army Reserve unit, the 262d Signal Company under the command of Capt. Joseph J. Gancie, Assistant Superintendent of American Cable and Radio, was made effective 11 April.

The unit was officially activated in ceremonies in the office of Maj. Gen. J. D. O'Connell, Chief Signal Officer. At that time, an affiliate agreement with American Cable and Radio was completed. The concept of affiliation goes back to the Civil War when commercial telegraph furnished much of the Army's required communications.

ATLAS Contract

An $83-million contract Air Force for electronic equipment has been awarded to the General Electric Company, Syracuse, N. Y., for work in connection with guidance of the Atlas Intercontinental Ballistic Missile.

The contract represents part of the Air Force's ICBM program which is under the overall direction of the Western Development Division of the Air Research and Development Command at Inglewood, Calif.

Morehead Patterson, American Machine & Foundry Company board chairman and president, announced at Los Angeles this week that Lt. Gen. Laurence C. Craigie, USAF-Ret., has joined AMF as assistant to the company's Defense Products Group Executive, in charge of long range planning. His headquarters will be in Los Angeles.

General Craigie, who at the time of his retirement from the Air Force in June, 1955 was commander of the Allied Air Force in Southern Europe, will give particular attention to the operations of AMF's two Southern California Defense Products organizations. Heavily engaged in the guided missile program, they are Associated Missile Products Corporation of Pomona, Calif., a subsidiary, and AMF's Turbo Division in Pacoima, Calif.

General Craigie is a director of the Glanini Instrument Company and the Hydro-Aire Company both in Los Angeles. Since receiving his wings in 1924, he has been a leading figure in the Air Force's transition from propeller-driven planes to today's jet aircraft. He was the first U. In 1926 Admiral Murphy was married to the former Ruth Garrison of Washington, D. C., daughter of Capt. Harry A. Garrison, MC, USN, and Mrs. Garrison. ## Marine Khaki May Go, Summer Green Tested

The Marine Corps has revealed details of the experimental light-weight green uniform which will be tested at Headquarters this Summer.

The uniform will be manufactured of a blended Dacron-Wool fabric.

If wear tests prove satisfactory, the Corps will eliminate the tan khaki Summer uniform. This will mean that male Leathernecks will be required to have only two uniforms instead of three.

The Blue uniform will be worn on leave, liberty and during ceremonial occasions, and the standard Green uniform will be the every-day uniform.

The purpose of the wear test is to determine the feasibility of adopting a green shade (to replace the tan khaki) for use during the Summer months and to standardize on a single fabric which can be worn throughout the year in most areas.

Headquarters said that if the standard green uniform is adopted, it will be at least five years before the entire Marine Corps is wearing the new Green's. The existing stocks of tan's will be used up as the Green's are phased into the supply system.

Cap Cover

At the same time, General Randolph McC. Pate, Commandant of the Marine Corps, approved the standardization of the white cap cover for wear with the blue uniform for the entire year. Stocks of the blue cap cover soon will be exhausted, and the Corps anticipates that the change-over can be effected this Fall. After that, the blue cap cover will be obsolete.

New Summer Tans

The Marine Corps Clothing Depot has begun manufacture of a new short-sleeve khaki uniform. Wear of this uniform is limited to tropical zones.

Retired Air Force Capt. Counsels Airmen At Travis

Getting expert advice on a career in the Air Force is no problem at Travis AFB, Calif., since Capt. Thomas J. Roper, USAF-Ret., voluntarily began spending his afternoons doing enlistment counseling.

A veteran of 34 years of service in the Army and Air Force, he has an adopted son, now a captain in U. S. Army Intelligence, who entered the service after graduating from high school and has since earned his college degree while remaining in the Service.

Navy Offers Revised Field Medicine Course

The Navy Medical Department correspondence course, "Combat and Field Medicine Practice, NavPers 10706-A," is available for distribution to officers and enlisted men.

Applications should be submitted to the Commanding Officer, U. S. Naval Medical School, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda 14, Md.

The course is made up of four objective question type assignments and is evaluated at 16 Naval Reserve promotion and non-disability retirement points. Those who have taken the course previously may retake the new course for point credit since it is comprised of completely revised material.

Lt. Col. "Pete" Goff Joins Link As Ass't To Pres.

Lt. Col. Edgar Allen "Pete" Goff, Jr., USAF-Ret., has been named to the position of Assistant to the President of Link Aviation, Inc. The appointment was announced by Link President E. Allan Williford.

Colonel Goff, who built his own airplane in 1914 and since has logged more than 17,000 flight hours, recently retired from the Air Force where he was serving as Commanding Officer of the Flight Service Squadron, Wright Patterson AFB, Ohio.

His aviation activities date back to the winter of 1911, when he built and soloed his own glider. In 1914 he built an airplane with an eight cylinder aircooled engine, and flew the craft successfully the following year.
